Guidance and Graduation

We have a couple of young people who have completed their high school requirements and graduated this spring. They have attended classes, been taught by many different teachers, and were the recipients of a great deal of time and energy. Now they have arrived. They have completed their course of study and are now ready to move to the next step of life's journey. Congratulations graduates.

As a high school graduate there is one very important thing to remember. Now you are moving into the world beyond school where you and I need guidance more than we did when we were in school. You are beginning a journey where guidance is more desperately needed now than ever before in your life. God has a plan for your life but often we think we know where all the dangers are and we can make it on our own. We believe we don't need a guide. It reminds me of a story that Dr. Chuck Swindoll told about when he was in the Marines.

"When I was in the Marine Corps our ship one time was at the northeastern corner of Formosa (now called Taiwan). We stopped there at the mouth of the harbor and awaited the arrival of the harbor pilot, who came out and took the wheel of the ship and began to weave us through the pathless waters that led to the dock itself. At first glance that seemed like an unnecessary thing to do. We could see the dock less than a mile ahead. But the closer we looked and the longer we looked over the side of the ship into the crystal clear waters, we could tell why we needed a harbor pilot. There were mines located randomly beneath the surface of the water. If the hull of our ship had nudged a mine just enough, disaster would have occurred. But the pilot of the harbor knew where ever mine was located and we made it into the dock safely.

So do we trust in our graduation diploma and believe that we have received all the guidance we will ever need or do we realize that we are now qualified to ask for the guidance of the Holy Spirit who will get us home safely.
